EliteDesign: Elite-Guided Learning for RNA Design via the Cross-Entropy Method

JasonFred Ngwa Milan Guatam David H Mathews
Liang Huang

October 27, 2026

Abstract

The aim of RNA Design is to find, within an exponentially large search space, a nucleotide sequence that folds into a given target structure. Efficient RNA design could aid in the development of RNA-based technologies such as riboswitches and ribozymes. However, finding sequences that fold into target structure with a high probability remains challenging, particularly for long and complex RNAs.